Crime show tackles AIDS

25

As it has so often in the past, CBS' "Cagney & Lacey" tonight (9 on Ch. 3) works into a police/crime show format some pertinent news topics in the lives of the characters, showing at least one way some controversial topics can be handled or dealt with.

Donald K. Davies

TV editor

Tonight, while trying to solve the murder of a man who has very little background information about him, both Mary Beth and Chris find their personal lives affected by the AIDS epidemic. Mary Beth loses her cool when a child in Alice's day care center is diagnosed as carrying the virus, and Christine is hesitant about broaching the subject of an AIDS test with her new boyfriend Nick (Carl Weintraub). Reason wins out, but it's two situations that worry a great number of viewers.

An earth-shattering program

I'm a "Frontline" viewer on PBS because so often these hours take a large issue and offer an in-depth, up-to-date treatment of something that interests me. I'll admit that most Wisconsin TV viewers are not hanging on every word put out in newspapers, magazines, TV and radio on the subject of earthquakes, but tonight's topic, "The Earthquake Is Coming," in which "Frontline" probes the implications of earthquakes today and in the future on California, has lines of interest that transcend the West Coast. Although it is not indicated in the adjacent TV grid, this is a repeat of a program shown last year and it graphically shows how ill-prepared this country may be to handle the devastation of a major earthquake (which several scientists believe will almost wipe out California within the next four or five decades).

I should point out that the program that precedes this on the Ch. 21 schedule, "Nova" (8 p.m.), is "The Man Who Loves Numbers," and this, too, was a fascinating subject that has been shown on TV during the past year. But, in this case, it was done on another program or network and I can't recall if it was "60 Minutes" or maybe another PBS show or series. The story is about the Indian accountant, Srinivasa Ramanujan, who did some astounding things in mathematics during the early part of this century.

'Nova' Is Odds-On Favorite; Prepare For The Earthquake

WASHINGTON — It's an evening of series on the networks, and I think you'll have some choices to make — unless you're locked in very tight to some favorites. One of my faves, Frank's Place (CBS at 9:30), features a guest appearance by Ken McMillan as a Wall Street big-shot. Meanwhile, Cagney & Lacey (CBS at 10), another fave, gets pretty bloody in an episode involving AIDS, a suspected suicide and murder.

HIGH MATH

PBS has one of those intriguing documentaries you never see anywhere else. This one is on the always superb science series, Nova (PBS at 9). The Man Who Loved Numbers is a re-creation of the life of an Indian mathematician of humble origins who, in 1914, embarked for England and Cambridge University. He had sent G.H. Hardy, a famous mathematician, an assortment of brilliant theorems and was invited immediately. Srinivasa Ramanujan left his wife and a job as a clerk behind to bury himself in math. Sadly, he died at 32, possibly the victim of vitamin deficiency.

SERIES NOTES

On Matlock (NBC at 8), Matlock defends a magician accused of murdering his unfaithful assistant. On Who's the Boss? (ABC at 8), Samantha gets a job as a model. On Trial and Error (CBS at 8), John and Tony have Mr. Kittle over for dinner. On My Sister Sam (CBS at 8:30), Sam takes piano lessons in the vain hope she will be a great pianist. On The Wonder Years (ABC at 8:30), Kevin takes a sex-education class. On Moonlighting (ABC at 9), Maddie and David are back together. On In the Heat of the Night (NBC at 9), an interracial romance is threatened by a murderous bigot. On Coming of Age (CBS at 9), Dick takes up flying. On thirtysomething (ABC at 10), Nancy has her first date since her separation. On Crime Story (NBC at 10), there's a brothel battle.

PBS PICKS

Still another good documentary on Frontline (PBS at 9), but do we really want to hear more about California's impending earthquake? The Earthquake Is Coming is a title that makes content crystal clear. Scientists are predicting the San Andreas fault will cause a devastating earthquake within 30 to 50 years and repercussions will affect the entire world.

TV TALK

On The Best of Carson (NBC at 11:30): Whoopi Goldberg, musical group Wang Chung and comedian Bob Saget.

Visiting Late Night with David Letterman (NBC at 12:30): actors Peter Ustinov and Matthew Broderick, musician Pat McLaughlin.

Sunday, March 20

Sports — The Dodgers and New York Mets take the field for an exhibition baseball game from Florida on NBC. CBS covers three second-round games in the NCAA basketball tournament. The Bay Hill Golf Classic tees off on NBC. In boxing, Tony Tubbs challenges Mike Tyson for the world heavyweight title on Home Box Office (cable).

Portrait of the Soviet Union on WTBS (cable) — Billed as the most extensive documentary ever filmed in the Soviet Union, this three-part documentary program looks at life there through the eyes of its people. Continues Monday and Tuesday.

A Place at the Table on NBC — Susan Dey and David Morse portray the penniless parents of a youngster (Lukas Haas) who is suffering from hunger in this hour-long drama. Jenny Lewis plays a friend of Haas who tries to motivate her community into helping the troubled family.

A Reggae Session on Cinemax (cable) — Reggae artists such as Jimmy Cliff and Bunny Wailer join rock stars Chrissie Hynde, Carlos Santana and Grace Jones for an hour of music from the Caribbean island of Jamaica. The program also salutes the late Jamaican reggae performer Bob Marley.

A Grand Night: The Performing Arts Salute Public Television on PBS — The final night of PBS's spring pledge drive comes to a close with this starry tribute taking place at the Chicago Theater. Hosted by Richard Thomas, the evening includes performances by Shirley Jones, Leona Mitchell and members of the New York City Ballet, among others.

Inherit The Wind — NBC's remake of the 1960 drama casts Kirk Douglas and Jason Robards as the opposing attorneys in a story based on the controversial Scopes "monkey trial" of 1925. The case dealt with an instructor who was prosecuted for teaching Darwin's theory of evolution.

Monday, March 21

Discoveries Underwater on PBS — Public television delves into the subject of marine archeology on this new eight-part series. It tells the stories of scientists and adventurers who are probing the earth's bodies of water to uncover traces of events and civilizations of the past. This episode considers the ethics of treasure hunting.

The Academy of Country Music Awards on NBC — Hank Williams Jr. and Reba McEntire co-host the 23rd annual event, with honors going to artists in 11 categories ranging from Top Vocal Group to Album of the Year. Williams and McEntire themselves are nominees for Entertainer of the Year.

God Bless the Child on ABC — Mare Winningham, who has tackled past roles in socially relevant dramas, takes on the topic of poverty in this TV movie. Here she plays a homeless single mother with a young daughter who gets assistance from a concerned social worker (Dorian Harewood) when she has difficulty finding a job.

Tuesday, March 22

Frontline on PBS — In a repeat of The Earthquake Is Coming, scientists note the possible economic and physical consequences of a big shaker in California.

Wednesday, March 23

Heartbeat — ABC introduces its new medical series with a two-hour movie pilot centering on the personal and professional lives of the staff at a medical group founded by women. Kate Mulgrew, Ben Masters, Laura Johnson and Gail Strickland head a large cast of regulars in this series which moves into its regular time slot next Wednesday.

Thursday, March 24

The Days and Nights of Molly Dodd on NBC — One of last season's nicest surprises returns with new episodes. Blair Brown stars in this sometimes dark but never dreary Jay Tarses (The 'Slap' Maxwell Story) comedy about a single woman in New York.

The Bronx Zoo — One of NBC's "designated hitters" comes up to bat for the preempted L.A. Law before moving into a weekly time slot next Wednesday. The story finds principal Joe Danzig (Edward Asner) deciding to withhold welfare checks to families of truant students at his high school.

Genie ceremony is live from T.O. tonight

THE ANNUAL springtime blizzard of award shows continues with the spotlight shifting home to Canada.

The Academy of Canadian Cinema and Television salutes Canada's movie industry tonight with the ninth annual edition of the Genie Awards (8 p.m., Ch. 3, 5, 10).

Gordon Pinsent and Megan Follows co-host the proceedings, airing live from the Metro Toronto Convention Centre. Among the items on the agenda is a special achievement award to be presented to producer / director Norman Jewison.

Other highlights:

The Wonder Years (7 p.m., Ch 5; 7.30 p.m., Ch. 10; 8.30 p.m., Ch. 7, 24) continues to sparkle as this season's best new comedy series. Tonight's episode revolves around Kevin (Fred Savage) and his nerdy pal, Paul (Josh Saviano), as they try to learn the facts of life from a book.

And Moonlighting (9 p.m., Ch. 7, 9, 13, 24) gets back on track with another new episode this week. After last week's flop, the focus is back on Maddie (Cybill Shepherd) and David (Bruce Willis). By the way, say goodbye to Maddie's new husband, Walter (Dennis Dugan), who makes his exit from the cast tonight. Falcon Crest star Ana-Alicia puts in a guest appearance.

Around the dial:

Dating raises new anxieties in Nancy (Patricia Wettig) on thirtysomething (10 p.m., Ch. 7, 11, 24).

PBS's Frontline (9 p.m., Ch. 54) airs a repeat of The Earthquake Is Coming, an examination of the possible economic and physical consequences of a major earthquake in California.

Buffalo's WNED-TV, meanwhile, offers a special episode of Nova (8 p.m., Ch. 17) about an effort to help three beached whales return to the ocean.

That's followed by an endearing look at Grace Kelly's screen career on Hollywood

8 p.m., 12 "Frontline" A repeat of an installment about earthquakes seems timely again, since Southern California was devastated by such a cataclysm last October. Host Judy Woodruff presents the views of scientists who predict that the state will be hit by a major catastrophe within the next 50 years. Also at 9 p.m. on 29.

9 p.m., 4 "Cagney & Lacey" In a new episode directed by series regular Al Waxman, the AIDS controversy affects both Cagney (Sharon Gless) and Lacey (Tyne Daly). Chris has romantic concerns, while Mary Beth learns that another child at her daughter's day-care center may be carrying the virus.

9:05 p.m., TBS "Casablanca" Bogart... Bergman... Rick's Cafe Americain... "Play it" (as opposed to "Play it again, Sam")... indeed, you must remember this. The Oscar-winning 1942 classic only gets better with age.
